

LME Offers

Guidelines (Documentation)

LME Offers

We have created a North Star for how LME Offers is presented to our customers to do the following:

1. Create alignment of how we present Offers across zones and aligning to the Offers page
2. Create a set of design guidelines for Offers (UI and Content), to which teams can adhere to and utilize
3. Align on our Design principles for interstitials & best practices

Experience Design Principles

Our Experience Design Principles for Mobile Interstitials and best practice rules to adhere to:

Seamless Visual Design

Design must fit seamlessly with the experience (font size and overall layout), to ensure it does not feel out of place (e.g. like a scam) & the visual design should look significantly different between service and sales communications.

Easy to dismiss an offer & no scrolling

Make it easy for users to close the offer interstitial using 'X' Dismissal icon on top of the page and not require the customer to scroll to dismiss the ad.

Relevant Messaging

Content should be concise using relevant messaging: Copy reduction for headings and body copy due to 200% zoom (dynamic text)

Highly personalized content

Mobile Interstitials should be used only for content that is highly personalized and relevant to the individual customer (not mass campaigns)

Easily actionable offers

Ensuring actions in an interstitial can be completed easily and quickly – straight through processing.

Load times

The load time should be kept short, so as to not negatively impact the experience.

Experience of when an Offer should appear

Consider when the interstitial should appear. Is there a different time in the experience that might be more effective instead of upon Account Summary load?

Suppression of LME Sales Offers for CDB Service Interstitials & multiple pop-ups one after another

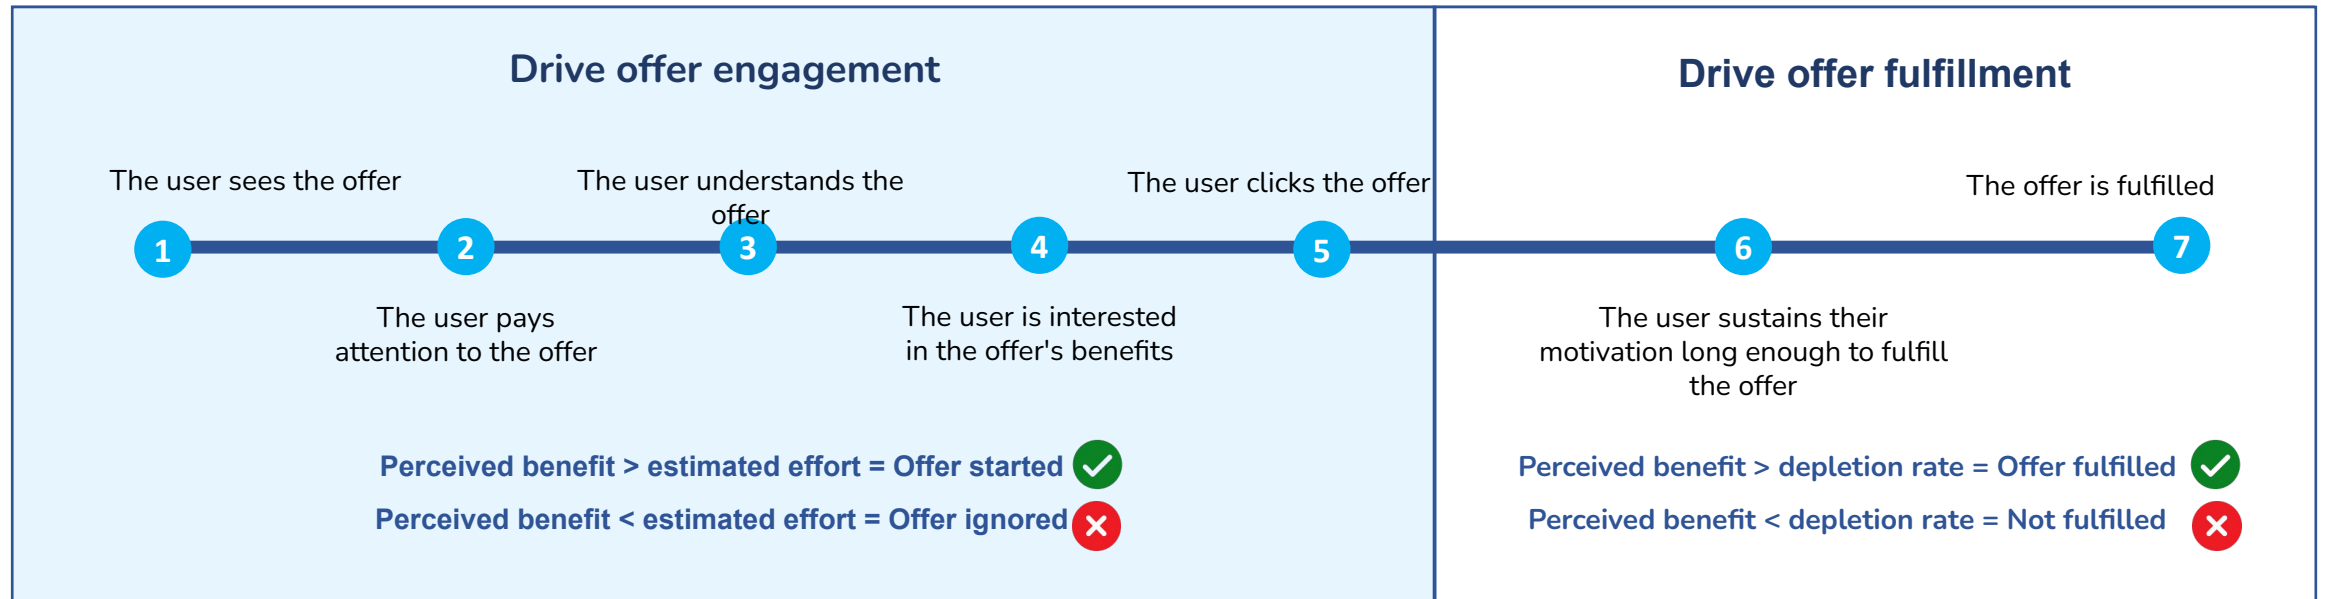

If there is a Service-related task that the customer must complete, this should take precedence over a sales offer upon login. The display of multiple pop-ups on top of each other can be overwhelming to a user and forces them to spend effort to close each one so offers should be suppressed when a customer has a service interstitial.

Monitoring performance

Performance of interstitials should be regularly monitored and adjusted to optimize results. (Currently campaigns are not revisited or adjusted while the campaign is running.)

Behavioral Science Concept of Experience-Value Theory & the Depletion Effect

i Expectant-value theory is a psychological and economic theory that suggests that all decisions are made based on the trade-off between the perceived benefit of an option and the estimated effort to achieve it.

Perceived benefit is the degree to which the customer believes the product or service is beneficial for them. It can be influenced by: ease of understanding the offer, previous offer experience, and the relevance of the offer to the user's goals and self.

Estimated effort, in this case, is the time and effort it takes to apply for a product or offer. It can be influenced by the ease of offer processing, expectations of effort, perceived complexity and previous experience.

i The depletion effect suggests that motivation wanes in the face of friction, which occurs for products that do not have straight through processing. This concept is the depletion effect.

Depletion rate is the speed in which the user's motivation to fulfill an offer decreases.

Depletion rate is impacted by the ease of the application process (e.g. sales application), salience of the product benefits to their goals and self, and whether the actual effort required meets the user's expectations.

General Guidelines

Tone of Voice

- ✓ Offers are presented in a high utility context (i.e. the customer is online to get info, conduct transactions, etc.)
- ✓ Language should be one of “friendly utility” i.e. content design should echo the “We’re here to help” brand voice, but get to the essential info quickly.

Brand Imagery

- ✓ Lifestyle imagery should have a focal point
- ✓ Images should be cropped across breakpoints showing context
- ✓ Strive for simplicity and realism
- ✓ Diverse & Inclusive images

Offer Interstitial Guidelines

Interstitial ads are full-screen placements between standard interactions in the user experience of a site or app.

Working with stock photography

What to look for

- ✓ Start with the story first to help establish scenarios.
- ✓ Be clear on who our audience is and isn't.
- ✓ Layer in keywords that help define our style. Try adding "candid," "not looking at camera," "spontaneous," "unposed," "natural," etc.
- ✓ Strive for simplicity and realism
- ✓ Diverse & Inclusive images
- ✓ Images should be cropped across breakpoints showing context

Focus on people, making an emotional connection when mixing them with product.
